EDENTON HISTORICAL COMMISSION: Incidents in the Life of a Slave Girl, by Harriet A. Jacobs, edited by Jean Fagan Yellin, narrative by John S. Jacobs, $16.50. This enlarged edition of Jacobs' celebrated slave narrative now completes the Jacobs family saga, surely one of the most memorable in all of American history. John Jacobs's short slave narrative, A True Tale of Slavery, published in London in 1861, adds a brother's perspective to Harriet Jacobs's own autobiography. Harriet Jacobs Family Papers, $100. Although millions of African American women were held in bondage over the 250 years that slavery was legal in the United States, Harriet Jacobs (1813-97) is the only one known to have left papers testifying to her life. Her autobiography, Incidents in the Life of a Slave Girl, holds a central place in the canon of American literature as the most important slave narrative by an African American woman. A Very Mutinous People: The Struggle for North Carolina, 1660-1713, by Noeleen McIlvenna $32.50. Historians have often glorified 18th-century Virginia planters' philosophical debates about the meaning of American liberty. But according to the author, the true exemplars of egalitarian political values had fled Virginia's plantation society late in the seventeenth century to create the first successful European colony in the Albemarle, in present-day North Carolina. A Richer Heritage: A Guide to Historic Preservation in the Twenty-First Century, $55 (hardcover), $27.50 (paperback). This book is a thought-provoking guide for professionals as well as administrators, volunteers, and policy makers involved in preservation efforts. To order or to learn more about other books that the historical commission sells, please visit <http://ehcnc.org/gift-shop-tickets/books>, or call (252) 482-7800.

The EDENTON WOMAN'S CLUB presents Between the River and the Sound: The Architectural Heritage of Chowan County, North Carolina as the companion volume to its 1992 publication, Edenton: An Architectural Portrait. Both publications reflect the work of architectural historian Thomas Butchko with input from other experts in the field. The new book provides an unprecedented look at the remarkable architectural legacy of the county's countryside. Some 300 properties are included, from humble farmhouses to well-known antebellum plantation houses like Hayes, Greenfield, Mulberry Hill, Athol, and Sandy Point. Also profiled are churches, schools, country stores, and a host of other buildings constructed into the mid-20th century. A discussion of the environment, history, and architecture of the county places the buildings in context and hundreds of photos convey a sense of architectural riches past and present. Handsomely rendered maps and a road-based organization will assist readers in touring the old and interesting places of the beautiful Chowan County landscape. To order, write the Barker House, 505 S. Broad St., Edenton, NC 27932; call (252) 482-7800; or visit <http://ehcnc.org/giftshop.php>.

THE MECKLENBURG HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION: A Life in Antebellum Charlotte: The Private Journal of Sarah Frew Davidson, 1837, edited by Karen McConnell, Janet Dyer, and Ann Williams, with a forward by Mary Kratt, and published by The History Press, Charleston SC. This is a transcription of Sarah Davidson's Journal for 1837, with additional historic information written by the editors. 1837 was a pivotal year in the history of North Carolina with the development of the gold mining industry and the construction of the first branch of the US Mint, in Charlotte. Other events described include the education of slave children and Sarah's religious introspection and commitment. The original Journal is held in the Rare Book and Manuscript Collection of the J. Murrey Atkins Library at UNCC. The book sells for $24.00 including tax, handling, and shipping. Chain of Error and the Mecklenburg Declarations of Independence by V. V. McNitt, republished by the MHA with a new introduction and brief sketches of the signers added. This is a closely reasoned and thorough description of the two declarations of May 20 & May 31, 1775 which were the earliest declarations of independence from Great Britain in the American colonies. The book sells for $28.50, including tax and shipping. Your Affectionate Daughter, Isabella, by Ann Williams, is the story of Isabella Torrance, preserved through letters and other records now held in the Rare Book and Manuscript Collection of the J. Murrey Atkins Library at UNCC. The story is written from the points of view of those who lived it and told in the language they spoke. It tells the story of growing up on a wealthy antebellum plantation in Mecklenburg County and at the Salem Female Boarding School; of pioneering in primitive conditions on the Mississippi frontier; and of Isabella's return to Mecklenburg as a young widow with a small child. This book sells for $21.50, including tax and shipping. To order these books, send your check and mailing instructions to The MHA, PO Box 35032, Charlotte, NC 28235.

The HISTORICAL PUBLICATIONS SECTION of the Office of Archives and History offers two new publications: Rebels and King's Men: Bertie County in the American Revolution, by Gerald W. Thomas, portrays the overall dedication of a small rural community to freedom and democracy—the underpinnings of the American experience. Bertie men served in significant numbers in North Carolina's Continental Line regiments and in companies of the county's detached militia. Another segment of the populace devoutly supported King George III and became entwined in a Loyalist conspiracy in the spring and summer of 1777 that was quickly crushed by the Whig authorities. Cost: $25.62 (paperback). North Carolina and the Two World Wars, by Sarah M. Lemmon and Nancy S. Midgette, provides an introduction to the Tar Heel experience in two pivotal twentieth-century events that boldly brought North Carolina into the Modern Era. Cost: $25.62 (paperback).
